Have your say on new library services

November 25, 2019
COOKTOWN

Coen, Lakeland and Laura residents could soon be accessing library services, with Cook Shire Council considering options to re-establish libraries across the Shire.

With the backing of residents and support from the State Library of Queensland, Council is now asking for the community's input. "We need to know what type of resources, programs and services residents in each town would like to access," Council's Senior Coordinator of Economy and Community Lifestyle Ivan Hegamaea said.

A short survey for each town is available on Council's website, or hard copies are also available at the Council office in Cooktown, Lakeland Coffee Shop, Laura General Store and Armbrust Store in Coen. Surveys must be returned to Council by Friday, December 13.

For more information contact Mr Hegamaea via email at mail@cook.qld.gov.au or phone on 4082 0500.
